Marine Corps Security Force Company (MCSFCO) Guantanamo Bay (GTMO) held a change of command ceremony at the MCSFCO parade field May 16.

Maj. Jerry Willingham relieved Maj. George Nunez as the commanding officer of the GTMO detachment.

Prior to turning over command to Willingham, Nunez expressed his honor to the audience of having served as MCSFCO commander for the past three years. He assumed command of MCSFCO in July 2005. Nunez's next assignment will be at Fort Benning, Ga.

Before reporting to GTMO, Willingham was assigned to G-3 plans for the Marine Air Ground Task Force Training Command. He spoke about how he looks forward to taking over the reigns at MCSFCO GTMO. "The thing I am most excited about is the chance to command and serve along side of these focused Marines guarding the fence line.

These young Marines undergo arduous training in order to become Security Forces Marines, continuing to push them and hone their lethal skills for future deployments is what excites me most about this tour," said Willingham.

A Marine of 19 years, Willingham graduated from Texas Tech University with a Bachelor of Arts Degree and was commissioned in 1996.

Willingham's tours include 4th Recon Battalion, Detachment Company H&S, 4th Tank Battalion; 3d Battalion 4th Marines at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Technical Advisory Field Team to Royal Saudi Marine Corps., 1st Battalion, 23d Marines in Harlingen, Texas, 2d Battalion, 7th Marines and Marine Air Ground Task Force Training Command.

His decorations include the MSM, Joint Service Commendation Medal, Navy-Marine Corps Commendation Medal, Navy Achievement medal with two gold stars and a Combat Action Ribbon.

Mildew matters in GTMO

Story by MC1 Robert Lamb

NAVSTA PAO

This year's rainfall along with high temperatures and humidity has Guantanamo Bay residents seeing black.

For the last few months, residents have noticed that a black residue is accumulating on their doors and windows.

No it's not the "Plague," a virus or even mold. It's just plain, old mildew.

According to the GTMO Housing Director Rudy Sammons, the mildew buildup is due to high levels of rain and humidity, but also could be attributed to residents' lifestyles.

"Most of what you see on the exterior surfaces is actually mildew, not mold," said Sammons. "Areas that do not receive direct sunlight may experience some mildew, but there are a lot of people who really like to crank down their thermostats and then open a door or window. When there are drastic changes in temperature, mold and mildew may occur."

Mold is most likely to grow where there is water source or dampness, such as in bathrooms and basements. Removing the source of moisture is critical to preventing more mold growth.

"We work closely with the Industrial Hygienist at the Naval Hospital. If we have persistent mold/mildew problems, we contact them for assistance/recommendations," said Sammons.

Most of mold typically found is not hazardous to healthy individuals. However, too much exposure to mold may cause or worsen conditions such as asthma, hay fever, or other allergies.

The most common symptoms of overexposure are cough, congestion, runny nose, eye irritation, and aggravation of asthma.

"We have not had any cases of the 'black' mold that is a health concern," said Sammons.

If you believe that you or your family have symptoms caused by exposure to mold, see a physician immediately.

NAVSTA GTMO participates in training exercise

Story by

MC2 Kim Williams

NAVSTA PAO

Naval Station (NAVSTA) Guantanamo Bay (GTMO) and some of its tenant commands conducted an installation training team (ITT) assessment May 15 at the NAVSTA Brig.

"The training gives you an idea on how to respond in the first few steps of an emergency situation, but more importantly, it prepares the watch team to initiate a chain reactions that lead them to regain control of the situation and engage others response teams in the efforts," said Warrant Officer Mario Batiz, Installation Training Team Advisor.

The ITT is made up of personnel from NAVSTA and tenant commands and conducts integrated training for the purpose of assessing the training of first responders and other watchstanders during a variety of drills and exercises. There are four integrated training events installations are required to participate in each year.

Installation Training

"ITT assess how well the exercise participants work together collectively as a team to combat an emergency," said ITT Coordinator Lt. Robert Trujillo.

"The ITT is designed to enhance any areas we have that may be deficient like response time to the scene of an accident," said Trujillo, "we collect training lessons learned and use that information for upcoming drills and exercises."

The goal of the ITT is to ensure that its installation has a capable workforce that can effectively and collectively combat any emergency on island.

The GTMO ITT team was tasked with responding to a simulated riot at the NAVSTA Brig by prisoners and migrants being held at the location. The rioters brutally attacked a prison guard, started a small fire and continuously defied orders to stand down. NAVSTA Personnel had to respond quickly and effectively in conjunction with tenant commands to remedy the situation.

Participants in the ITT expressed the importance of teamwork and how every department plays an important role in getting the mission accomplished.

"It is amazing how we may each have only a small slice, but bring us together in an coordinated effort and those small pieces make up a giant pie," said Master Chief Information Systems Technician(SW/AW) Amanda Alston, ITT assistant coordinator.

"Here in GTMO, we have no choice but to rely on each other across the base," said Trujillo. "One team, one fight—we will get the job done."

*CORRECTION— From the May 16 issue, page 6 , "Traffic violations increase in GTMO article. The quote in column two, paragraph two should read, "The traffic board is an administrative forum, not a legal one," said Chief Magistrate Cmdr. Jeff Johnston. "There is a connection between someone's GTMO driving record and their on-base privileges elsewhere. The Consolidated Law Enforcement Operation Center (CLEOC) system tracks everyone's driving throughout the military services, on all installations. So if you pick up a six-month suspension the day before you leave GTMO, you'll spend the first six months of your next tour bumming a ride from the main gate."

Naval Mobile Construction Battalion (NMCB) 74 Detachment Guantanamo Bay (GTMO) members donated their off-hours to lend a helping hand to the local Sea Cadet unit by repairing their new headquarters building.

Since 1958, the Sea Cadets have provided an exceptional learning environment for young men and women between ages 13 and 17.

As with any organization, they were looking for a place to call their own. The base agreed to sign over a small building that had long since been abandoned.

"We are taking this one step at a time", said Lt. Mark Christensen. "We will start with this awning and then move to the next task on this project as we get materials from around the base."

The brush was over grown and the local rodent and insects had invaded the building. "The first time we looked at it, the floors were covered with rotting vegetation and termite damaged wood", said Equipment Operator 1st Class Dale Worley, NMCB 74.

The Seabees obtained most of the materials from old projects around the base and did the work in their off time.

The Seabee's have completed the awning and are now working to replace the grill that will be used for group cook outs and Sea Cadet command functions.

Once the building has been cleared of the termites, the Seabees will replace two of the rafters and put a new roof on the building.

NMCB 74 is midway through a six month deployment to GTMO in support of Operation Enduring Freedom.

Weathers family says 'farewell'

The six years we spent here in Guantanamo Bay have been an incredible experience. We have enjoyed the beaches, shelling, fishing, snorkeling, all of the "bring a dish events" and much more, but the thing we will always cherish the most are the wonderful friends we have made here. You are more than friends. We consider you family and will truly miss our GTMO family.

We leave May 24 from the Dock of the Bay at 10 a.m. If you are ever in Pensacola, please look us up. You are always welcome and will always have a place to stay. We also want to thank everyone for the help and support we received with our recent medical emergency. It meant more than you can ever know! This is not goodbye, just see you later.

Navy College resumes DANTES testing

Navy College Offices worldwide have resumed administering the paper-based DSST Principles of Public Speaking, Excelsior, General Educational Development (GED), SAT, ACT, PRAXIS and LSAT. Between NAVADMIN 119/08 & NAVADMIN 137/08 (see attachments), all paper-based exams are now restored at shore Navy testing sites.

The GTMO Navy College Office has reestablished testing for the GED, SAT and ACT. Please contact the NCO for further information and schedules for Excelsior, DSST Principles of Public Speaking, and other DANTES sponsored exams.

With regard to FY-09 STA-21 applications, servicemembers impacted by the DANTES testing suspension, may submit a partial application package, less only their ACT or SAT scores, no later than July 1, 2008. Those partial applications must include an endorsement by their commanding officer, certifying that the DANTES Test Suspension has prohibited the applicant from receiving their ACT or SAT results prior to July 1. Those applying with partial application packages must submit ACT or SAT scores before Sept. 1, 2008. No additional documents can be added after this date. For more information, go to the STA-21 website - <https://www.sta-21.navy.mil/app.html>

Columbia College administers the CLEP and DSST tests. To register for CLEP and DSSTs, visit Columbia's website <http://www.ccis.edu/guantanamo>, call 75555 or stop by in person. Study material for the above tests can be retrieved from <https://www.nko.navy.mil>; the base library; and online. To access the official study guides for the CLEP and DSST tests, go to <https://www.nko.navy.mil> click on the Learning tab > scroll down to the study guides. # FCPOA raises funds for battered women's shelter

NAVSTA PAO

The Guantanamo Bay First Class Petty Officers Association (FCPOA) conducted a run May 17 to raise funds for the Lake County, Ohio, Committee on Family Violence, Inc. also known as "Forbes House".

Forbes House, the only safe shelter for battered women and their children in the Lake County, Ohio area, sustained water damage from a flood in December 2007.

According to Ohio reporter John Horton, "a failed sump pump flooded the bottom floor of Forbes House, effectively shutting down Lake County's refuge for victims of domestic violence. The damaged shelter has turned away 13 families, and repair costs may reach $25,000 before the doors open again," said Horton.

Because the domestic shelter's insurance policy didn't cover sump pump failure, the cost would have to come out of the shelter's own funds.

Board member Frank Hanus said the shelter "needs a lot of help" to overcome this setback.

All proceeds from the FCPOA will go toward the purchase of desks, conference tables, chairs, and other items that were ruined in the flood.

"First I would like to say thank you! It is very kind and generous of the association members to think of Forbes House, especially the women and children we serve," said Mary Barnes, Forbes House interim director.

"We appreciate any and all fundraising efforts by the Navy petty officers. Your generosity with your time and effort while you are away from your home and loved ones speaks to your dedication and thoughtfulness for those in need."

The FCPOA raised more than $1,000 in donations from the run/walk.

"The Association wants to assist organizations, anywhere, that are in need. We don't think we can fix all problems or wipe out any one thing in particular, but we have decided we will always try," said Electronics Technician (SW) 1st Class Jerry Ramm.

Military better prepared than ever for disaster relief, official says

By John J. Kruzell
American Forces Press Service

The Defense Department and U.S. military are better prepared than ever to aid disaster-relief efforts, and have improved measures for tracking military families affected by catastrophe, a top Pentagon official said yesterday.

Among other services, department entities are poised to assist with evacuations, emergency transportation and search-and-rescue missions as the nation braces for the hurricane season that starts June 1, Paul McHale, assistant secretary of defense for homeland defense and Americas' security affairs, said.

"Today, the Department of Defense — active, reserve and National Guard — is better prepared to assist civil authorities than at any other time in our nation's history," McHale said at a Hurricane Awareness Day news conference at the Federal Emergency Management Agency here.

McHale said the department understands its role in catastrophic relief and has worked with FEMA to put in place a wide range of missions to support a national response. In the event of disaster, the Pentagon is prepared to coordinate FEMA logistics on military bases, to deploy emergency communications rapidly, and to deliver ready-made meals, water and power generators.

Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff praised the increased role the Defense Department has assumed over recent years.

"[The people of the Defense Department] have been phenomenal partners over the last couple of years and have become really fully integrated with our planning system and our approach in a way that was not the case previously," he said.

The Pentagon has more closely integrated its planning with the National Guard Bureau, U.S. Northern Command, and state adjutants general, McHale said. Guardsmen are ready to deploy to Gulf Coast and East Coast states — where hurricanes are most likely to hit — and military forces are prepared to protect constitutional rights and provide law enforcement if either system breaks down in the wake of a disaster.
